WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS Claims for Back Travel Pay Pass ½ Billion; Farm Chiefs Call for Protective Tariff Released by Western Newspaper Union. (MINITOR'S NOTE: When splatons are expressed in these columns, they are those of western Newspaper Siglen's newspaper.)

PORTAL TO PORTAL: Claims Mount

As union claims against industry for back pay for walking to the Job or preparing for work on company properly mounted to over half a billion, tax experts opined that Uncle Sam may have to bear the burden of the settlements if the firms are permitted to obtain tax credits for such disbursements.

Although John L. Lewis first pointed up the question of so-called 'portal to portal" pay for miners traveling to the coal faces underground, the principle was given industry-wide implications with the Supreme court's decision upholding such compensation retroactive to 1938 for employees of the Mount Clemens, Mich., Pottery company,

The Supreme court verdict was followed by a rush of the major CIO unions for such refronctive back pay, with the United Farm Equipment and Metal Workers suing International Harvester for 100 million dollars. Since employees have been paid for a 40 hour week, the unions are asking for overtime pay plus damages.

Firms may be able to charge off back payments to Uncle Sam under provisions of the income tax law permitting companies to carry back net operating losses into the two preceding years and also apply such losses in two succeeding years.

Meanwhile, the U. S. Chamber of Commerce polled its membership on congressional amendment of the fair labor standards act of 1939 under which portal to portal pay has been based. The chamber proposed (1) observance of custom. practice or agreement in different localities or industries as to working rules; (2) provision for relief for unwilling violation of the law, and (3) permission of companies and unions to make compromise seitlements.

S. farmers to a flood of foreign commodities and reducing their living standards to a subsistence level. Calling for a trade program fitted into the American economy, the commissioners advocated the exchange of such exportable products as wheat, lard and cotton for rubber, coffee, tea and bananas.

Wisely, the commissioners' peillion was national rather than sectional in its nature. Although professing concern for the future of cotton in competition with foreign rayon, nylon and other ar-Uncial fibers made in reconverted armament plants, the commissioners also warned that a further lowering of tariff rales would adversely affect cattle, olcomargarine, butter, cheese, fish, eggs, grains, potatoes, peanuts and vegetables.

Dramatically pointing up the effeet of cheap foreign competition on American products, the commissioners declared that whereas white and sweet potato starches had been used for the adhesives on the back of stamps and the flaps of envelopes, the adhesive on the stamp bearing the petition was made of imported cassava roots.

QUAKE:

Rocks Japan

As hundreds of thousands of Japanese made homeless by earthquake and tidal wave shivered in the wintry air, the U. S. rushed relief to the distressed areas,

Having become used to the shock and terror of wartime B-29 raids, the Japanese accepted the catastroplie with resignation, calmly counting their dead and injured in the thousands and their property damage in the millions. No less than 24 of the 47 prefectures felt the tremors, with the coastal regions of southern Honshu, Shikoku and Awaji islands swept by seven foot walls of water rushing in from the sea.

All of the horror and distress was portrayed by the Tokyo newspaper Asahi in an eyewitness report from Shikoku: First, startled people felt the ground shaking beneath them, then they could hear a great roaring sound. Stumbling from their quaking houses, they rushed for high ground, but many were overtaken by a surging wall of water and their screams rent the air. Some people saw a little girl with a doll crying, "Save me, gentle Buddha," when they returned to search for relatives the tearful child was missing and all they could find was the doll, wedged between planks on the

Oriental Scholar Improves Nutritive Value of Rice

answered both those questions for me and it's quite possible that had he not been able to answer both, he would have been able to answer either.

clouded Washington afternoon. Briefly, he has invented a process which keeps the nutritive value of rice in the kernel, boosts the rice yield by 25 per cent, cheats rice-eating beetles and weevils out of their annual million dollar banquet, but probably most important of all, leaves the Vitamin B factors in each grain of rice intact.

Since the rice-eating countries account for half the world's population and since malnutrition is a serious problem in all of them, the invention seems a little less than revolutionary in its potentialities. It is already the basis of a going concern.

Out of Product

My acquaintance with rice has been a nodding one, furthered by periodic visits to Chinese restaurants. When I ate the underpinning of the celery sprouts and a strips of chicken, I didn't realize that the ancient Pharaohs of Egypt would have approved its polished white ness, I didn't realize that that polished whiteness had been achieved by 19 different cleaning, milling and polishing operations. And I cer-Under a compromise effected last tainly didn't guess that those 19 opof its riboflavin and 63 per cent of its nincin - and most of its food

The poor people of Egypt went on eating their rough unpolished rice. And nobody guessed why they were healthler than their rulers. This situation lasted until the French revolution when the revolutionaries insisted on their right to keep up with the royal Joneses. They wanted pollahed white rice too-(and white bread). They got it, and have been getting it ever since. The ension has persisted until today when we still require our rice millers to strip away more than half the vitamins from our rice and wheat. This is not so important in potato and bread-conscious America, but in oriental countries where frequently the word "rice" and "food" are synonymous, it's something else again. Six hundred thirty million orientals derive more than 40 per cent of their food calories from rice -and If the rice is polished, they are losing vital nutritional values at every meal.

Malek became rice-conscious back in 1938 when one of his friends wished aloud that he could figure out some way to increase rice consumption in the United States.

At that time, tons of rice were rolling in the California rice fields for want of a market. Each reason, this country's rice growers were being left with a surplus of at least three million bags of rice. The industry was slowly going broke.

Malek went at the problem in the approved American tradition. He polled representative California Malex.

Up to that point Malek had been trying to can polished white rice. Rice whose vitaminfilled bran layers had been cleaned, hulled, milled, scoured and polished away. This was the first mention of the treatment of rough paddy rice before it was milled. He leaped on it as a possible clue.

He managed to get from a friend bag of rough paddy rice-prepaid fortunately, for by this time, Malek was walking to and from his experimental laboratory, unable to afford even a car token.

He soaked the rice for days. When he needed to parboil the rice in steam, he found an unused sterilizer at a nearby hospital where the internes were glad to help him. Even his neighbors in his apartment building were on hand to help him sprend the parbolled rice on the roof to dry. Now he had his precious parboiled paddy rice. But the tough hulls on the kernels posed a problem. An ordinary rice mill handles rough rice in carload lots. The only for Malek to mill a hundred pounds was to find a hand mill, Well, he found a hand mill and ground the hulls from the rice. The rice was canned, and this time the kernels that rolled out were hard, dark, chocolate colored and separate.

At that time, Malek didn't know he had accidentally driven the water-soluble bran layers into the rice kernel itself. He only knew this rice was distinctly different than any he had canned before, What he had to do then was to determine the length of time to soak the rice, what temperature to use, under what steam pressure to parboll it, It took Malek months, working with makeshift equipment to hit upon the right formula. Finally he obtained rice which, when canned, came out fluffy, with each grain separate and perfectly lender. The layers of bran driven into the kernel imparted a different nut-like bran flavor-and the long cooking at high temperature had made the rice sterile. But the best part of all-which he discovered through scientific analysiswas the fact that this new rice was unbelievably rich in vitamins.

The army and navy were interested, and Malek offered them his patents for the war's duration. At the present time he's busy licensing rice mills here and abroad to use bla process.

About the only thing he has left to worry about now is how to obtain the rice in order to process it. The rice supply, as any grocery-haunting housewife will know, is not what it used to be. The world supply of rice is short this year, and a large percentage of rice raised in the United States has been allocated to countries where rice is a staple food. This scarcily explains why rice, along with sugar and syrup, is the only food still remaining under price control. But once the world supply inreases, there'll be more rice, more nuiritious rice, more flavoriul rice. Furthermore. Malek guarantees that the brand-new bride won't have to make any last-minute switches In the dinner menu because the rice she cooked turned out all wrong. Oh! - what about the Aramalo

U. N. Is Offered a Home

New York will fight to hold U. N. If it takes Rockefeller's last nickel, John D. offered an $8,500,000 sixblock water-front site to keep the United Nations in the big city. Aladdin has stepped into the picture in U. N.'s housing crisis, The only question is whether there is anybody in the United Nations who can veto a lamp.

From Flushing Meadow to Rockefeller center in one blueprint is quite a travelogue. One minute U. N. seemed like a forlorn G. I. searching for an unoccupled Quonset. The next minute he was having six blocks of New York's choice real estate handed him on a gold platter; NO cover charge.

If there were long months when Miss United Nations thought New York was cold to her, she now must realize she is being suddenly pursued with $8,500,000 worth of love and six blocks of unmortgaged pas-

The proposed site has many advantages. It is located where the diplomats may see a poorhouse from one window, East Side life from another, the very heart of New York from another and some society residential sectors from another. If the view doesn't give them a democratic intermingling of scenic effects, characters and types of living, nothing will.

The rich, the poor, the middleclasses, the "haves and the havenots"; the limousine and the subway sets, the people who have the veto and the people who merely have the corner delicatessen and Grogan's bar . . . they're all visible there on a clear day.

The six-block area now is mostly the habitat of meat packers and slaughterers and is known as the beef zone. There are those who insist U. N. possession won't change that name.

Any day you can stand in this. zone, and hear the doomed sheepbah-h-ing as they are led to slaughter. We commend the sound to some of the more selfish and obstreperous ngures in U. N.

Personally we are not too sure about a super peace center in the heart of Manhattan as a brotherly love influence. It seems to us that the world organization needs an atmosphere of calm, leisure and dignity rather than one of speed, traffic jams, general jostling and highpressure chaos. We would say It would do better with a background less like big business and card-index efficiency and more like Bethichem and starry night.

Men engaged in the greatest job of history, the bringing of peace and the brotherhood of man to a blitzed and baffled globe need something more than express elevators, 38 floors of de luxe offices, special lighting, adjacency to the subway and an opportunity to lunch at the Busy Bee cale between debates.

Still a home is a home and it's nothing to sneeze at. And as Grant said, "Let us love peace"-every eight million dollars will help.

CHAPTER I

The heat in town had been intense, and Julia McFarlane rolled the station-wagon under the ivy covered porte-cochere gratefully.

The big old house would be cool. It was always cool, the solid brick walls, built over a century since shutting out the sun with aloof dignity. Julia jerked off her hat before she opened the door and slid out of the coat of her smart gray suit. She dropped the hat and coat on a chair and was pushing the heavy, moist auburn hair off her forehead when a yell came down the curving staircase. A young yell.

"Dooley, is that you?" Julia sighed. She was so tired. It was five o'clock, and she had had no lunch. She had spent hours in an airless office, growing more furious by the moment, and then she had argued for another hour with a young government representative who quoted regulations, almost smacking his lips over them. To her desperate plea that there had to be more wiring for power and pumping on Buzzard's Hill, that there had to be more sence if they were to raise hams and bacon for the army, he had smiled a maddenringly superior smile.

To his smug vision all this had spelled wire-copper wire, steel wire-and wire was not to be surrendered, even to a handsome woman in a stylish hat. So Julia had come back to the farm, wrung out and exasperated, and now here was Jill yelling from upstairs.

"Dooley, come up here right Away!"

Julia went up the stairs slowly. In the bright little room at the end of the hall Jill was standing on a stool before a looking glass, her slim legs hidden in folds of white jersey, her face full of woe.

"It's all crooked!" she walled, "They stretched it when they cleaned it, and it's all in scallops. It looks like the devil. What am I going to do?!"

Julia dropped on the bed and looked at her child. Jill's halr was lighter than her own, taffy and sunlight and wild curling mischief. where Julia's had darkened to the hue of old cherry wood and lay back sleckly under a brush. Jill's eyes Were darker, too, almost black under striking, arrogant brows; direct, demanding eyes, impatient, with little compromise in them,

"What do you want to do, Jill?

Cut the hem off and even it?" "I haven't got time. It's yards around the bottom, though it does hang so straight. Would it look awful, Dooley, if we cut off the worst places and hemmed It? It has to be right, it simply has to."

"What cooks? Something terribly special?"

'Frightfully special." Jill jerked angrily at the stubbern folds. "It's Spang. And the club dance. He has a three-day pass. He's coming on the bus."

"Do I know Spang? He sounds like some kind of canned dog-ration.

Would Spang be outraged by an uneven hemline?"

"Don't make gags, Dooley, you're not the type. Handsome dignity is your line. No, you don't know Spang. He's a turret instructor had to help him on the horse, and right now, down at Ric's Field. Jill puckered her brow, "Mother, Ric's a private. Just a plain Joe; and a casual at that, He couldn't get a pass home unless he bought one from somebody, and he says they've hiked the price now till it isn't worth it."

"But-do you mean that he came home last time on some other man's pasa?" Julia spoke between pins, sharply,

"Of course. Unless it was an emergency he wouldn't rate a pass. They might want to ship him out any minute."

But that was a foolish and risky | mentals of a career woman, rething to do when he's trying to get into officer's school!"

"Oh, they organize things, Ric says-get some other Joe to answer | were her farm uniform; she'd have for them at roll-call or something," Jill turned slowly on her loes.
"I don't like it," Julia said stern-

"Oh, Mother, you know how much | attention Ric pays to maternal admonition I You only had one dutiful child-me."

"Stand still, or I'll never get this right."

She was so tired that her legs quivered and her eyes blurred. And now worry was spinning like a dentist's drill in her brain. For now she was beginning to know what before had been only a nagging fear, a motherly apprehension. Now she knew that the thing she hated had not died, had not removed itself from her life. It was going on. Richard, her son, born in loneliness and torment-Richard was going on being another mad and reckless Mc-Farlane, irresponsible, not to be be lieved.

times, when Jill and young Richard were small and everything was very grim for her, that no child of hers should ever live through what she herself was living through. She had worked so hard; she had even done rough work with her own hands to me. Oh, I forgot to tell you, I asked build up this old farm. She had Spang to stay here. He hasn't any family at all. I fixed the bed befought drouth and animal epidemles and insects and discouragement, to make a richer, kinder life for Ric and Jill. And she had succeeded. She looked through the window at the white fences marching over the lush green of the fields of Buzzard's Hill, and she knew that she had succeeded. Her father-in-law had helped. She gave him his due in all loyalty. He had been a rock to lean upon, he had been a pillar-a flery pillar, but steadfast. Through all the strange years when no word had come from Richard, her husband, when there had been only silence as balling as the hollow sky, as deep as the sea, old John I, had stood by herthrough the grim times and good times. She had lived through it, but she would fight to save Jill from a life like that. She heard the clump of John I,'s boots presently, heard him yelling something into the telephone. All the McFarlanes yelled, even Jill. There was so much in them that was alive and in a ferment, Patience had been left out of them. It was as if they had a yeasty brew instead of blood in their veins.

Richard, whom she had married, had yelled, too. Up three flights in that little walk-up flat in Washington-why must she think of that just now? Why couldn't she make herself forget, finally and forever? Last year she had determined to forget, and the year before. It irritated her that she, a strong woman, was not strong enough to conquer this thing that haunted her.

The dress finished, she laid it carefully across Jill's bed and got into the faded shirt, the rough clothes that went with being a plg-woman. She tled her hair up in a bandana and went downstairs.

"Perhaps if you started writing again you might sell something,' she ventured.

"Write," he snorted. "I'm so tired at night I don't have an idea in my head. I do the same thing day in and day out, world without end, amen, and you think I can write. Write about what!"

The next morning Mary raced through her work, washed and dressed the baby, settled three-yearold Shirley in the sand-box to play, then got out her typewriter.

Two days later James received a

TAXES FROM UTILITIES

PAY EDUCATIONAL COSTS From the taxes collected by the states, the countles and the municipalities comes the money that pays for our public school system. I do not have available the figures showing the number of students in dent of maintaining those schools. For one state, California, I do have such figures, and one other figure that is of interest when applied to the maintenance of the primary schools of that state.

the primary public schools of the nation, or the annual cost per stu-

In California the average daily attendance of students in the primary schools, those embracing up to, and including, the sixth grade, is above 600,000. In 1944 the daily average was 630,648. For the same year the total cost of maintaining those primary schools, including all salaries and materials, but not the cost of construction of school plants, or any interest on bonds, amounting to $66,-859,494. The annual cost per student attending those primary schools was $105.99.

The money to pay those bills in California, as in all other states, comes from taxes, but who pays the taxes? One very large source of tax money is the utilities—the railroads, gas and electric companies, municipal transportation systems and others when they are privately owned.

I do not know the total of such taxes collected in California, I do have the total of what the railroads pay as taxes to the state, counties and municipalities in the year 1945. That total was $15,475,805. Railroad taxes in the state, rot including any paid to the federal government, was sufficient to provide primary education for one out of each five of the boys and girls attending the primary public schools in the state. If to that could be added the taxes paid by all the other privately owned utilities in the state the total certainly would be above one half the price paid for educating those primary school students.

What is true in California would, on a percentage basis, prove true in all other states. A very large part of the cost of educating our little Mary Jones and Bobby Browns is by the privately owned utilitles. It is such utilities that a minority of our people are demanding be taken over and operated by the federal government. If that were done nicipality. We, the individuals of each state, would be forced to dig down into our jeans and provide those many millions for school funds. or compel the little folks to face the problems of life without an education. Taxes paid by the privately owned utilities, including the railroads, can, and very largely do, represent the difference between a lit-

Veterans' Disability

Approximately 1,647,000 veterans are receiving disability payments monthly as a result of disabilities incurred in the armed forces during World War II, according to Veterans' administration. Average monthly payment amounts to about $42,

Payments range from $13,80 per month to $360 a month, depending upon the degree and type of disability. VA says about 25 per cent of veterans of World War II have filed claims for disability benefits and of those adjudicated about one out of two has resulted in an award. At the same time, VA announces that more than 372,000 dependents of deceased World War II veterans are receiving national service life insurance benefits averaging approximately $50 monthly. In more than 75 per cent of the cases, beneficiaries will receive these payments for the rest of their lives. As of November 1, 1946, the face value of the active G.I. insurance awards exceeded $3,-488,000,000. However, due to interest factors, ultimate value of the awarded benefits may approach the five billion mark. Parents are the sole beneficiaries in about 65 per cent of the cases and widows in 23 per cent

Q. Is there a law which provides for the education of children of deceased war veterans at the expense of the government? A friend told me there was such a law.- K. L. B. Ligonier, Ind.

A. No, there is no such law. The American Legion is sponsoring a bill for the coming session of congress which would provide for payment of $50 monthly for educational purposes to children over 16 years old of veterans killed in action. Q. Is there an office of Veterans'

THE GOAL MUST BE JUSTICE

The nation may be on the verge ed a witch hunt. Inflation has reached the hardship stage. And when economic hardship prevails, some group usually takes the ran. This time, if care is not exercise! in the needed revision of labor laws, labor will suffer. Arrogant labor leadership has created an in-calculable reservoir of popular resentment. The resentment is justified, Generally speaking, a man may not hold a job in a basic industry today without paying labor tribute to a labor boss who union is legally accountable to no one. The danger is that short-sighted politicians will try to cash in on this resentment. Just as a decade ago every demagogue in the country sought uffice with sweeping attacks on in-

There were two outstanding demestic events in 1916. First, was the November election which, partisanship to one side, was a magtificent reaffirmation of the doctrine of free government at a time when mest of the world seems to have described to the forces of reaction, which the super state represents. The vote amounted to an indictment of autocratic governtrent, and to an indictment of taher abuses as well Millions of pea-tir who belong to labor unions npeke namistakably at the polls for a return to first principles.

The second event was the coal str ke and its dramatic, unprocedented conclusion. There could be no mistaking the public's sense of college when one man callously exceed to subject the whole nation to industrial paralysis, widespread unemployment, and actual draitinition. Champion of Clean Milk

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M .- Clean milk and milk products will plways command a good market, according to Secretary of Agriculture Clinton P. Anderson, who isn't worrying about farm surpluses— where they will spend a few cither on his own 600-acre dairy farm-ranch near here, or on the nation's farm front. He believes the war actually stimulated the market for milk and milk products. Here he is shown examining one of the milking machines used on his farm. Anderson is particular about maintaining high standards of farm cleanliness because he is convinced that American farmers must continue to improve quality and production of their milk in order to hold the peak market. Young Economist

I met a young economist in England. His thinking revealed that he would like to see the complete crumbling of the present order and the ultimate nationalization of all England. ·His discussion showed too that he would thoroughly relish failure of "the capitalistic order" in America, which he boldly predicted would surely come within a few

Notable thing about this young man is that he is very influential in the Labor government. He talked freely and with spirit, and the enthusiasm he exhibited shows conclusively which school of thought in England is on the defensive. It is unfortunate when Truth and Right are no longer on the crusade, but instead must be called to the defen-

Influence of Youth I asked this young economist the secret of the growth of the Socialist party in the United Kingdom. Displaying political acumen which is engendered only from a thorough understanding of reality and a knowledge of facts, this economist said that victory in the last election in close districts came because of the vote of the young people.

"In fact, the percentage of young people who voted the Socialist ticket was greater than the percentage of older people in the ranks of Labor," he told me, adding a fact I knew already: that the growth of Socialism has been more rapid among young people and among skilled workers. The influence of higher education, he stoutly affirmed, was a definite factor in the spread of Secialism throughout the Kingdom.

I did not encourage him in this regard about America, but the parallel was clear. I found myself wishing that our own high schools and colleges were doing a better job of building into the very Cher of American youth a deep appreciation for the fundamental principles of our American way of life, lest our youth some day lead this nation down that same unfortunate road. Strange irony it is, that wealth created by honest work is used in the form of taxes and in grants as means to destroy the philosophy which begot our freedom and our wealth.

Competition Needed Even the government officials in which they are also storing up will add to the security of their families.

U. S. Treasury Department London do not seem quite sure that the principle of nationalization is sound. Some uncertainty exists, for they are already detecting basic weaknesses. During the week of July 15 a London newspaper quoted the London County Council as saying that the London Transport (a government monopoly operating street-cars and buses) needed competition. In the same week another writer stated his opinion that the British Broadcasting Corporation, the weaknesses of which were George Cole at Greenwood, at that time under fire in Parliaor broadcasting companies in Eng-

The Wife Who Chooses Unhappiness

Bell Syndicale, - WND Peatitres.

"I've watched Dana at parties to closely as not to have any fun myself,"

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

EVERLEY is a very young wife, not yet 20. Her husband, Dana, is 10 years older; he was the football hero of her small girl days; even more her idol when in his navy licutenant's uniform he went away to war. He came home covered with honors, ribbons and battle stars, and Beverley went straight into his arms. They were married just before her 19th birthday anniversary in a setting of June roses and white uniforms and crossed swords, and so far everything was perfect. But then came trouble and lots of it.

Dana left the navy and went back to managing his father's big depertment store, but it wasn't that, His father married a young thing of 26 and eventually there were three bables, thus deflecting from Beyorley and Dans not only the family farture but some of the spoilight, but it wasn't that. Beverley never teathed now to cook or man are a bouse and, as they couldn't got help at today's prices, a good deal of discomfort ensued, but it

Unfounded Jealousy.

"From the beginning I've teled to come between Dana and other women. I've watched him at parties, to closely as not to have any fun myself. I know he knows it, I call him at the office, and ask the board operator if he is in consultation with anyone, and if it's one of two spetial women buyers, I'm miserable for hours. I try not to meet him when he gets home with questions and suspicions, but I'm so wreichedly anxious all the time that he auon suspects it, and after a few minuics it all comes out, I imagine his cost smells of perfume, I imagine the pursons who call him on the telephane are women who are in have with him, and he says now that his men friends are beginning to Joke him about being tied to my aprob strings. That is because when there was a duck hupt planned I told him he could not and would not leave me, and I don't believe he would have, even if I had asked

MOTHER TO BLAME

It may be a plain woman, it may be a much older woman, but some woman always can get a man away from a suspicious, watchful, jealous wife. That is the warning sounded by Aliss Norris in today's article, which combines advice to a frivolous young bride with an indiciment against modern mothers.

Terming today's mothers 'spiritually and morally lazy," Miss Norris charges that they ignore the all-important question of character building while taking pains with their children's riding and dancing lessons, teeth, manners and frocks.

A wise mother, Miss Norris contends, could have built up Beverley's character to the point where the could have averted the impending catastrophe, spiritually and morally lazy mothers who take such pains with their children's riding and dancing lessons, teeth and manners and frocks. and leave the all-important question of character building entirely to

We are all lealous, dishonest, untruthful, rude, lazy - we are all everything that is wrong, when we are small children, Why is it so many mothers are so super-scrupulous about correct posture, correct speech, correct clothing, and never realize that there are corresponding niceties of soul that need cultivallon, too' What sort of a mother tells a rensitive child that jeniousy is inherent in her, that it blighted the lives of the said mother and her mother before her, and that there is nothing for wretched little Beverley to do but fall a victim to it, tool Don't mothers teach their children to fight human weaknesses and overcome them, to avoid course language, reckless scandal, cheating at bridge, selfishness, rudeness, extravagance, fealousles? Do they let them undertake the serious and infinitely delicate business of marriage just as they came from the nursery, fighting for their possessions, furious if one gets a toy or a piece of candy more than the other, letting someone else wipe the dishes, make the beds, grabbing everything and glying nothing?

A wise mother could have built up Deverley's character to the point where it never would occur to her "You see," the letter rather pay that the young, loving charm that the tically ends, "I do love Dank to first won Dank's attention could not that the young, loving charm that hold him through all the ups and downs of married life. Two of the actors set out to work their way back to New York.

They were lucky enough to get a passage on a barge, and when passing through a lock they over-heard this conversation:

"What you got on board, Jim?" "Load of fertilizer and a couple of actors, Bert."

The two actors looked at each other in silence, then sighed deen-'Cyril," said one, "shall we never top the bill?"

Colorful Old West Lives Again In Omaha Historical Museum

Railroad Exhibit Is Visual Record Of Pioneer Days

WNU Features.

OMAHA, NEB .- The roaring, hectic days of the Old West are not dead-they still live in all their flamboyant glory in the Union Pacific's historical museum located in the company's headquarters building here.

Fascinating documents, maps, relics, weapons, furniture, books, household, articles, farm implements, personal possessions and other mementos of the men and events which carved an empire out of a wilderness comprise a dramatic and graphic visual record of the struggles, tragedles and triumphs of the ploneer West.

Portray Progress. Interwoven with the faded relics and ghosts of long-dead pioneers and heroes of the West are exhibits portraying the epic record in the building of the Union Pacific, which played an instrumental role in the westward expansion of the empire.

Shunning away from the musty and moldering atmos-phere of the typical "museum ldea," all the exhibits are designed to preserve all the color and adventure which prevailed in the pioneer days.

Since this valuable historical collection was opened to the public in 1939, approximately 200,000 visitors representing every state in the union and 41 foreign countries have registered at the museum.

Reminisce on Careers. Bearded oldsters wander through the exhibits musing over items which recall their own picturesque careers when they-and the Westwere young. In contrast are school children and street urchins, intrigued by the drama in the winning of the West. Side by side come scholars and business men, housewives and railroad executives, while during war years many a serviceman discovered that browsing around the exhibits provided an Ideal means of whiling away the seemingly endless wait for trains. Curator of the museum is Mrs. Ruth Cultra Hamilton, former school teacher who has been assoclated with the railroad for many

Lauds Woman's Role, True to her clan, Mrs. Hamilton admits that her one regret is that the museum collections are almost wholly a memorial to the great men

"No one remembers those anony mous women who ranked with their men as courageous ploneers," - she complains.

To museum visitors, bowever, she can point out a few household, articles which serve as mute reminders that even while heroes conquered the West, someone had to cook and the farming. Modern-day housewives stare uncomprehendingly at such primitive devices as candle molds, a sauerkraut stomper, a broom of hickory splints, a spinning wheel and reel dating back to 1859. Typical of the hardships which the ploneer woman endured are exhibits of crude farm implements—an awkward flail, clumsy hoe and handmade barley

Recall Indian Raids.

Many souvenirs of the constant guerrilla warfare between the hostile Indians and workmen who pushed the rails ever westward also are on display. Supplementing the tomahawks and arrows is the handiwork of Indian women who engaged in more peaceful pursuits than their warriors, included in the work, tobacco pouches, medicine bags, amulets and other articles fashioned by Sloux women and decorated with embroidery of flattened porcupine guills dyed with roots and berries.

Wild-eyed youngsters gaze in awe at the pistols which spat flame and lead in the heetle early days but which now rest peacefully in the museum's display cases.

Many Guns Shown. A huge .69 horse pistol is on display, along with flintlocks dating back to the American revolution and pepper-box types, derringers, ball and cap and muzzle-loading types, In one case are guns taken from train robbers while another case contains bullet molds, cartridge loaders, powder flasks and horns, equipment used in pistol shooting.

millions are the watch and scissors used by "Old Jim" Bridger and a money belt and autographed picture of "Buffalo Bill" Cody,

The epic migration of ploneers over the Mormon trail, Oregon trail and other pathways to the West is represented by many relies. Attracting major interest is an original map issued to westbound ploneers, showing every place across the prairies where food could be obtained and the location of blacksmiths, Rare and original photographs of the Great Emancipator hold the spotlight in an extensive Lincoln collection, A replica of the Lincoln funeral car also is displayed.

Tribute to Rails. With the building of the West irretrievably linked with the development of rall transportation, the museum features mementos in the history of tailroading. Primipal Item is a yellowed telegram bearing a single sentence. You can make amdayit of completion of road to Promontory Summit." Well — Janet hails from Altoona, Pa., and emerged into the limelight as a band singer before coming to Hollywood, Incidentally, the Dorseys say it's lucky they were such fighters, because otherwise they might not have been so successful, They worked together as long as they could, trying to direct one band jointly. The break came, Tommy went his way alone, Jimmy went his -result, two top-notch bands.

Tom Conway is fast becoming the top whodunit actor in show business. He plays "Sherlock Holmes" on ABC Saturday nights, and has just completed his tenth mystery pic-

Kay Gorcey, wife of Groucho Marx, has been signed to appear with her husband in a comedy dance coutine for the Sam Coslow production, "Copacabana," a forthcoming United Artists release, with Carmen ndy Russell, Steve Cochran and Gloria Jean.

Ken Niles, announcer for "Suspense," has been signed to play the role of the attorney in Robert Mitchum's RKO picture, "Out of the Past." You may be familiar with the story under the really good origihal title, which was "Build My Gallows High."

Lowell Thomas was all set to nake teaching his life work, till he took a trip to Alaska and made some unusual films of primitive mining communities. Later, teaching at Princeton, he lectured a few times. using his films as illustrations. It proved to be so profitable that he abandoned teaching, and he's been traveling the world and getting paid for it ever since.

Andrew Toombs, character actor who crashed films because of his bald head, has played more than 200 bald-head roles in pictures. But he gets the break of a lifetime in Warners' Technicolor musical, "My Wild Irish Rose"-wears a flowing head of hair, appropriately parted in the middle, for his role of a bartender of the Gay Nineties. Incidentally, Dennis Morgan's doing road work to keep in trim for the picture; he hasn't done a strenuous vocal chore since "The Desert Song," and finds singing more taxing than merely making love.

Chet Lauck and Tuffy Goff ("Lum" and "Abner") have a new protege. Slie's Ruth Parrot, who played a lady barber on their program. Her performance interested 20th Century-Fox talent scouts, and she landed a role in "Mother Wore Tights," Now Chet and Tuffy say they can hardly wall for the picture to be released, so that they can begin taking bows for discovering her in the fiest place.

Keep Tree Fresh

An Xmas tree can be kept fresh if you set it up in a pan of water, Cut off the base of the tree at an angle at least one inch above the original cut and keep it standing In water during the entire period that the tree is in the house, adding water to the jar or tub in which the tree stands at intervals to keep the water level always above the cut. This method when used with fresh trees reduces the flammability as effectively as any fireproofing chemicals. Chemicals may cause the tree to turn brown or yellow or to lose its needles. The place you select for your tree should be well away from stoves, radiators and other sources of heat. When you smoke, keep away from the tree,

"I've watched Dana at parties to closely at not to have any fun myself."

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

EVERLEY is a very young wife, not yet 20. Her husband, Dana, is 10 years older; he was the football hero of her small girl days; even more her idol when in his navy lieutenant's uniform he went away to war. He came home covered with honors, ribbons and battle stars, and Beverley went straight into his arms. They were married just before her 19th birthday anniversary in a setting of June roses and white uniforms and crossed swords, and so far everything was perfect. But then came trouble and lots of it.

Dana left the navy and went back to managing his father's bly deportment store, but it wasn't that, His father married a young tiling of 20 and eventually there were three hables, thus deflecting from Beverley and Dana not only the family fortune but some of the spotlight, but it wasn't that. Beverley never are a house and, as they couldn't get help at today's prices, a good deal of discomfort ensued, but it wasn't that,

"I'll admit I was spolled and inexperimeed," writes Beverley "But I am learning, and Dana is angelically patient. But what's ruining our lives is that I'm Jenlousinvanely lealous, and my mother was before me, and hers before ber. It's in our blood, and we can't help it, and there you are.

Unfounded Jealousy,

"From the beginning I've tried to come between Dana and other women. I've watched him at parties, so closely as not to have any fun myself. I know he knows II. I call him at the office, and ask the board operator if he is in consultation with anyone, and if it's one of two special women buyers, I'm miserable for hours I try not to meet him when he gets home with questions and suspicions, but I'm so wretchedly anxious oil the time that he scon suspects it, and after a few minutes it all comes out. I imagine his coat smells of perform, I imagine the persons who call him on the telephone are women who are in love with him, and he says now that his men friends are beginning to Joke him about being fied to my spren strings. That is because when there was a duck hunt planned I teld him he could not and would not leave me, and I don't believe he sould have, even if I had asked

"Another thing, Dana is anxious for a child, for children, I am not I am only 19, and children age a Zirl, and reparate her from her husband too. The happiest couples I know are those without children and I don't want any obligations that will reparate me from Dena.

"You see," the letter rather pa-bielically ends, "I do love Dana so desperately! Life looks so long shrad of the, to our golden wede ding, and I'm so alraid of other women, for he notices them all, and they adors blm. Worrying about it yet, as I lold you, my mother was Jealous to the point almost of insanily, and it is in my blood, I tan'i help il, even thanki i know that I am doing the very thing that will less Dana's love and respect," Indiciment of Mothers.

MOTHER TO BLAME

It may be a plain woman, it may be a much older woman, but some woman always can get a man away from a suspicious, watchful, jealous wife. That is the warning sounded by Miss Norris in today's article, which combines advice to . frivolous young bride with an indictment against modern mothers.

Terming today's mothers "spiritually and morally lazy," Miss Norris charges that they ignore the all-important question of character building while taking pains with their chil-dren's riding and dancing lessons, teeth, manners and frocks.

Beverley, who admits she was spoiled and inexperienced when she became the bride of her footbull hero and glamorous naval officer, foresees the vreckage of her marriage cause of her own insune jeal-

A selse mother, Miss Norris contends, could bave built up Beverley's character to the point where the could have averted the impending catastrophe.

spiritually and morally lazy mothers who take such pains with their children's tiding and dancing lessuns, teeth and manners and frocks, and leave the all-important question of character building entirely to

We are all jenious, dishonest, untruthful, rude, lazy - we are all everything that is wrong, when we are small children. Why is it so many mothers are so super-scrupulous about correct posture, correct speech, correct clothing, and never realize that there are corresponding niceties of soul that need cultivallon, too" What sort of a mother tells a sensitive child that jealousy is inherent in her, that it blighted the lives of the said mother and her mother before her, and that there is nothing for wretched little Beverley to do but fall a victim to it, too? Don't mothers leach their children to fight human weaknesses and overcome them, to avoid coarse language, reckless scandol, cheating at bridge, selfishness, rudeness, extravagance, jeniousles? Do they let them undertake the serious and infinitely delicate business of marriage just as they came from the nursery, fighting for their possesplans, furious if one gels a toy or a piece of eardy more than the other, leiling someone cise wipe the dishes, make the beds, grabbing everything and giving nothing?

A wise mother could have built up Beverley's character to the point where it never would occur to her that the young, loving charm that first won Dana's attention could not hold him through all the ups and downs of married life. A wise mother would have taught her that to women, older and more fascinating | become happily absorbed in hitr own proud position and dulles as his wife would be the surest way to give keeps me nervous all the time. And Dana his own anxious twinges as to the danger of losing his little paragon of a companion. As It is, here is one more marriage - potentially so rich in happiness - gone on the rocks. It may be a plain woman, it may be a much older woman, but some woman always can get a man away from a suspicious, watchful jealous wife.

Railroad Exhibit Is Visual Record Of Pioneer Days

WNU Features,

OMAHA, NEB .- The roaring, hectic days of the Old West are not dead—they still live in all their flamboyant glory in the Union Pacific's historical museum located in the company's headquarters building here.

Fascinating documents, maps, relics, weapons, furniture, books, household articles, farm implements, personal possessions and other mementos of the men and events which carved an empire out of a wilderness comprise a dramatic and graphic visual record of the struggles, tragedles and triumphs of the ploneer West.

Portray Progress.

Interwoven with the faded relics and ghosts of long-dead pioneers and heroes of the West are exhibits portraying the epic record in the build-ing of the Union Pacific, which played an instrumental role in the westward expansion of the empire.

Shunning away from the musty and moldering atmosphere of the typical "museum ldea," all the exhibits are designed to preserve all the color and adventure which prevailed in the ploneer days.

Since this valuable historical collection was opened to the public in 1039, approximately 200,000 visitors representing every state in the union and 41 foreign countries have registered at the museum.

Reminisce on Careers. Bearded oldsters wander through the exhibits musing over items which recall their own picturesque careers when they-and the Westwere young. In contrast are school children and street urchins, intrigued by the drama in the winning of the West. Side by side come scholars and business men, housewives and railroad executives, while during war years many a serviceman discovered that browsing around the exhibits provided an ideal means of whiling away the seemingly endless wait for trains.
